

Operation Round Up helps improve Dickens City park

Operation Round Up is not just a scholarship program. It provides financial assistance to hundreds of individuals and many community support organizations.

The City of Dickens received a grant to help refurbish its park. Dickens reflects the image of a typical West Texas small town. The population was 332 at the 2000 census. There were 133 households with about one-third having children under the age of 18.

The City park gives these families and kids a safe place to gather and have fun.

Especially with summer school vacation starting this month, this park will see a lot of action.

"I love it when I come by in the evenings and see kids enjoying the park," said City Secretary Jody Taylor. "If they are here enjoying the park, they aren't getting in trouble some where else."

Taylor said they have purchased a new tube slide and several other new pieces of equipment and are just waiting for the weather to cooperate and volunteers to be available for assembly.

The City of Dickens has more plans for refurbishing the park and would welcome additional donations. Also, please let Taylor know if you would be willing to help assemble and install new equipment at the playground. All donations are used to purchase items for the playground and all labor is volunteer.

To make donations of time or money to the Dickens City Park, contact Jody Taylor at 623-5224.
